COMMUNITY VOICES & VIOLENCE PREVENTION

As Chicago transit crime jumps, activist calls for action

(The Center Square) – With the number of crimes being committed at Chicago Transit Authority stations now sharply on the rise, Violence Interrupters Executive Director Tio Hardiman is demanding top city officials do more to keep riders safe.

New data show that more than 1,300 offenses were reported through September of last year, representing the most crimes perpetrated across the system since the onset of the pandemic. With Green Line and Red Line riders being among those most likely to be victimized and battery being the most common offense, statistics show about 1.3 out of every 100,000 rides across the system ended with a crime being committed.
